rhetorics poetics and cultures is james berlin s most comprehensive effort to refigure the field of english studies here in his last book berlin both historically situates and recovers for today the tools and insights of rhetoric displaced and marginalized he argues by the allegedly disinterested study of aesthetic texts in the college english department berlin sees rhetoric as offering a unique perspective on the current disciplinary crisis complementing the challenging perspectives offered by postmodern literary theory and cultural studies the argument of this book is that the earliest tradition of western rhetoric the classical perspective of aristotle and cicero continues to have the greatest impact on writing instruction albeit an unconscious impact this occurs despite the fact that modern rhetoric no longer accepts either the views of mind language and world underlying ancient theory or the concepts about discourse knowledge and communication presented in that theory as a result teachers are depending on ideas as outmoded as they are unreflectively accepted knoblauch and brannon maintain that the two traditions are fundamentally incompatible in their assumptions and concepts so that writing teachers must make choices between them if their teaching is to be purposeful and consistent they suggest that the modern tradition offers a richer basis for instruction and they show what teaching from that perspective looks like and how it differs from traditional teaching in transforming ethos rosanne carlo synthesizes philosophy rhetorical theory and composition theory to clarify the role of ethos and its potential for identification and pedagogy for writing studies carlo renews focus on the ethos appeal and highlights its connection to materiality and place as a powerful instrument for writing and its teaching one that insists on the relational and multimodal aspects of writing and makes prominent its inherent ethical considerations and possibilities through case studies of professional and student writings as well as narrative reflections transforming ethos imagines the ethos appeal as not only connected to style and voice but also a process of habituation related to practices of everyday interaction in places and with things carlo addresses how ethos aids in creating identification transcending divisions between the self and other she shows that when writers tell their experiences they create and reveal the ethos appeal and this type of narrative multimodal writing is central to scholarship in rhetoric and composition as well as the teaching of writing in addition carlo considers how composition is becoming compromised by professionalization particularly through the idea of transfer which is overtaking the critical work of self development with others that a writing classroom should encourage in college students transforming ethos cements ethos as an essential term for the modern practice and teaching of rhetoric and places it at the heart of writing studies this book will be significant for students and scholars in rhetoric and composition as well as those interested in higher education more broadly
